

Ron Kahler threw his first pot at the age of 14. Then in 1965 learned even more about how to throw and fire pots in his 9th grade art class. In 1970 he transferred to the University of Northern Iowa and took a pottery class and, "the rest is history," he says. Ron spent 10 years as an art teacher in grades K through Junior College.

In 1983 Ron put his art career on hold for a career as a psychologist. "I stopped art for 30 years but in 2005 I returned to art because I realized I needed some balance in my life."